The Ante Nicene period, spanning from the apostolic era to the Council of Nicaea in 325 AD, was a time of both persecution and great theological developments. The early Christians faced intense hostility from the Roman Empire, yet amidst the trials, they preserved their faith and laid the foundations of Christian doctrine.

This collection presents the writings of the Ante Nicene fathers, including Justin Martyr, Tertullian, Origen, and Irenaeus. Their works offer valuable insights into the beliefs and practices of the early Church, as well as their responses to pagan philosophies and Jewish influences.

The Nicene Council: Defining the Creed and Combating Heresies

The Council of Nicaea, convened by Emperor Constantine in 325 AD, played a pivotal role in shaping the Christian faith. The council fathers confronted the Arian heresy, which denied the full divinity of Jesus Christ. The Nicene Creed, adopted at the council, remains a cornerstone of Christian belief today.

The collection features writings from the key figures of the Nicene period, including Athanasius, Eusebius, and Cyril of Alexandria. These works provide firsthand accounts of the council's proceedings and the theological debates that ensued.

The Post Nicene Period: Consolidation and Expansion

The Post Nicene period, extending from the Council of Nicaea to the early 5th century, witnessed the consolidation of Christian doctrine and the expansion of the Church. This collection includes writings from prominent theologians and church leaders of this era, such as Augustine, Ambrose, Jerome, and Gregory of Nyssa.

Their works address a wide range of theological and practical issues, including the nature of God, the person and work of Christ, the Church's role in society, and the interpretation of Scripture.
